Reasons for Allowance

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The field of invention relates to electronic commerce and specifically relates to a customer/vendor electronic marketplace that permits a customer to transact business with the electronic marketplace and then receive services from a selected vendor listed by the marketplace that provides auxiliary services or goods related to the original transaction. In particular, the invention is useful in furthering electronic commerce within the moving and relocation services industry.

Regarding method claims 2, 3, 4, 18 and 19, the electronic marketplace processes a customer's originating transaction and enables the customer to access content listed by the electronic marketplace regarding an auxiliary service or good related to the originating transaction. Once the customer makes payment to the marketplace for an auxiliary service, the customer receives a confirmation code associated with the auxiliary service and instruction pertaining to confirmation code. Once the auxiliary service has been performed by the vendor, the vendor now in possession of the confirmation code uses the confirmation code to activate settlement via the marketplace. System claim 20 embodies the functionality of method claim 2. Method claims 3, 4, 18 and 19 offer minor variations of method claim 2. For instance, claim 19 describes an auxiliary service or good relating to moving.

Neither the previously cited prior art nor closest prior art noted below alone or in combination with other prior art teach and suggest the combinations of methods as claimed.

Closest US Patent/US Patent Publication Prior Art

Previously cited prior art Raveis (US 2001/0037230 and US 6,321,202) in combination with Gilgoff fail to teach and suggest the combinations of methods as claimed. Raveis ('230, '202) alone or in combination with other prior art do not teach and suggest the combination of methods: issuing to the customer a confirmation code associated with the secondary transaction; and after performance of the service or delivery of the good and the vendor's receipt of the confirmation code from the customer, activating a payment to the vendor for the service or good in response to the vendor entering the confirmation code.

Forward and backward citations of Raveis '202 and forward citations of Raveis '230 failed to produce prior art that teach and suggest the combinations of methods as claimed.

Applicants' Admissions discloses a primary transaction and secondary transactions related to the primary transaction. Applicants' Admissions however fails to teach and suggest the combinations of methods as claimed. Applicants' Admissions alone or in combination with other prior art do not teach and suggest the combination of methods: issuing to the customer a confirmation code associated with the secondary transaction; and after performance of the service or delivery of the good and the vendor's receipt of the confirmation code from the customer, activating a payment to the vendor for the service or good in response to the vendor entering the confirmation code.

Walker (US 6,970,837) currently cited provides a system and methods of processing purchase request for a first product and subsequently taking possession of a substitute product at a retailer. The customer pays the online service for the first product and receives a redemption code. The redemption code is revealed to the retailer who may, based upon the type of product identified by the redemption code, offer the customer a substitute product. Walker however fails to teach and suggest the combinations of methods as claimed. Walker alone or in combination with other prior art do not teach and suggest the combination of methods: issuing to the customer a confirmation code associated with the secondary transaction; and after performance of the service or delivery of the good and the vendor's receipt of the confirmation code from the customer, activating a payment to the vendor for the service or good in response to the vendor entering the confirmation code. Walker reveals the redemption code to the retailer before taking possession of the substitute product which is used by the retailer and online service to complete settlement. Walker further lacks the combination of methods of processing an original transaction by the online service leading to a second transaction processed by the online service for a good or service related to the first transaction resulting in the issuing of the confirmation code (or redemption code) to the customer.

Forward and backward citations of Walker (US 6,970,837, CIP of US 6,754,636) and Walker (US 6,754,636) failed to produce prior art that teach and suggest the combinations of methods as claimed. Of note from the forward and backward citations and based on keyword hits is Mori (US 6,085,168) which was reviewed and determined to not teach and suggest the combinations of methods as claimed.

Biffar (US 5,903,880) currently cited provides a system and methods of a self-contained payment system with circulating digital vouchers. Biffar's invention establishes an escrow account for the user from which the user draws funds to make payments for items or services. User A creates a digital voucher with transferable value via the system, forwards the digital voucher to User B permitting User B to redeem the voucher for its corresponding value. A settlement process debits User A's escrow account and increases User B's account by the transferable amount of the redeemed digital voucher. .Biffar, however, fails to teach and suggest the combinations of methods: issuing to the customer a confirmation code associated with the secondary transaction; and after performance of the service or delivery of the good and the vendor's receipt of the confirmation code from the customer, activating a payment to the vendor for the service or good in response to the vendor entering the confirmation code. Biffar alone or in combination with other prior art do not teach and suggest the combination of methods: issuing to the customer a confirmation code associated with the secondary transaction, instructing the customer to provide the confirmation code to the vendor after performance of the service or delivery of the good; and activating a payment to the vendor for the service or good in response to the vendor entering the confirmation code.

Forward and backward citations of Biffar failed to produce prior art that teach and suggest the combinations of methods as claimed.

Closest Non-patent Literature

Gilgoff (Paper #20061120, Item U) alone or in combination with Raveis or other prior art do not teach and suggest the combination of methods: issuing to the customer a confirmation code associated with the secondary transaction; and after performance of the service or delivery of the good and the vendor's receipt of the confirmation code from the customer, activating a payment to the vendor for the service or good in response to the vendor entering the confirmation code.

Conclusion

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
